

Structured Language Experience Story “ac” #2

The active factory workers made a pact to bring their lunches from home. This acrimonious tactic was to make the factory owner take action to change the actual lunches served in the factory.

The workers were tired of the macaroni served with bacteria. Also, the saccharine-filled macaroon cookies were so bad that a raccoon wouldn't touch them.

Once factory workers presented the actual facts accurately, the owner agreed to sacrifice profit for the well-being of his factory workers. He won many accolades from his employees for activating this change.