

Structured Language Experience Story “ack” #2

Jack Mackison packed his backpack and headed to the Australian Outback. When he arrived, he unpacked his sack and began to whimper after noticing his lack of snacks. He searched through his backpack and noticed a crack in the pack sack. It became pitch black outside so Jack decided to snack on his Monterey Jack cheese and read his hardback novel by the light supplied by the smokestack. In the morning, Jack decided to pack up his backpack and go running home with his pack sack and forget about his dream to explore the Outback.