

Structured Language Experience Story “ag” #2

Agatha dragged her baggage to her Jaguar parked next to the flagpole. She was staggering under the weight of the bags. This aggravated her nagging back problem. Magnanimously, her husband offered to get her the wagon to carry the rest of her baggage. She was aggravated about that idea. The haggard Agatha told him that if he was a magnificent husband, he would snag the bags and drag them to her Jaguar. Quickly, her husband ended her aggression by grabbing the bags and taking them to the Jaguar. He then grabbed a magnolia from a bush and gave it to Agatha.