

Structured Language Experience Story “ank” #1

Frank and Clark were playing on the snowbank when they decided to plan a prank on their parents. They yanked off their boots, anklets, and snow pants. Frank and Clark then sank their pants in the snow on the flank of the riverbank. They stuck their boots on the pant legs. It looked like they had fallen into the blanket of snow. Like artists, they carefully covered their tracks and hid.

A cranky banker was the first to get a shock as he saw the legs sticking out of the snow near the dock. He called to a swanky girl to get help. When help arrived, they were thankful to see it was only a prank.

The boys each got a spanking from their mother who frankly told them never to do such a thing again.