

Structured Language Experience Story “ast” #2

The ghastly master of the castle was chastising Patsy for painting the vast castle in pastel colors. The nasty master felt this was a dastardly deed. He thought it was a blast to paint the plaster all black.

Patsy felt like a castaway as he threw her out of the castle. Soon, she came across a pastor in the pasture. Masterfully, he soon had her telling him about the ghastly master's past nastiness.

The pastor convinced her that her acts were not dastardly. Lastly, he told her that he loved her painting abilities. Soon they were married. Now she lives in a house in the pasture with her husband, the pastor, and her pastime is painting pictures of nasturtiums that are masterpieces.