

Structured Language Experience Story “au” #2

Audrey had put down her cup and saucer. She had just finished the laundry and hauled it upstairs to put away. She was excited to be taking her family’s automobile to see her friend Paula. It was a crisp autumn day, and the leaves were turning beautiful hues of red, yellow, and orange. She paused to think about what she had been taught - Always be cautious when you back out of the driveway. She hopped into the car and cautiously started to back out. Crash! That naughty little boy, Austin, who lived next door had left his wagon there. Audrey picked it up and hauled it over to Austin’s house. His mother came to the door. “Oh my, I must have forgotten to bring that in. I used it to hold the clean laundry. It’s my fault!”
