

Structured Language Experience Story “aw” #2

On our awning was an awfully large snake. The snake had a crow in its maw. I thought it was awful. My friend thought it was awesome. I wanted to help the crow caught in the jaw. It was almost raw, and it let out a big caw. I thought I would draw a picture of a paw and trick this snake with the awfully large maw. I took my seesaw and climbed the board to the top of the awning. I took my drawing of the paw and an awl. The sight awed me. I hit the snake's maw with the awl. The snake dropped the crow and went after the drawn paw. The crow cawed, “Thanks!” as it landed in some straw.
