

Structured Language Experience Story “ed” #2

Edgar, the redheaded editor, needed to take a medical leave from writing his editorials. It was too stressful. Ned, his doctor, told him to set an early bedtime and dedicate himself to following good medical advice! Otherwise, he would find himself bedridden. So, Edgar fled to the Mediterranean. He spent his days relaxing with edible foods, pedicures, and meditation. He became quite sedentary as he watched the redstarts fly from tree to tree and breathed in the smell of fragrant flowers. It was such an incredible experience, Edgar retired from his job as editor and stayed in the Mediterranean.