Bill sat on the pavilion looking out at the millpond. It was thrilling to watch the silver moon shine on the waterlilies.

“If I had a million, billion dollars I’d buy this pond from the miller.”

Just then a chill went down Bill’s spine. The silver moon light was moving towards Bill.

“No, that’s silly. Moon light does not have the ability to move.”

Bill was bewildered. He ran up the hill to get film. Will anyone believe Bill? With the film they will. Bill shot some stills. The strange silver light by the mill pond chilled Bill on the pavilion.
