

Structured Language Experience Story “oa” #2

The groaning goalkeeper was loathe to come out of the game after being hit in the throat. But, her coach was coaxing her to come to the sidelines. Moaning, the goalie knew this would be a roadblock to winning the game. Covering the goalie with a coat, the coach helped her away from the goal.

Roaming the other team’s sideline was Joan. She was boastfully gloating that the goalkeeper was hurt. She boasted, “Now we can coast to a win!”

However, her fellow teammates told Joan she was a cockroach. No one should gloat because someone’s hurt their throat! Both coaches decided to end the game with the current score tied.
