

Structured Language Experience Story “oi” #2

The noisy crane had hoisted the oil vat over the joint to avoid extra toil. However, the oil spilled spoiling the soil. Boisterous voices were rising as turmoil surrounded the joint.

“What was the point in avoiding toil if it created more work?” asked the workers noisily as their tempers were boiling.

“It was unavoidable that the soil was spoiled,” replied Mr. Spoiner in a quiet voice.

They decided to join together to begin the task of cleaning the spoiled soil. They uncoiled the hose to spray the soil. After cleaning the soil, they planted poinsettias to beautify the soil.

