

Structured Language Experience Story “one” #1

Mr. Slone was all alone playing his trombone. The show had been postponed since the park wasn't zoned for concerts. Nonetheless, Mr. Slone was prone to practicing outside on the stone. He didn't condone skipping practices as he honed his tones.

Suddenly, Mr. Slone heard the telephone. It was the old crone, Mrs. Marone, complaining that she had to wear headphones to keep out the drone of the trombone. But, Mr. Slone heard in her undertone a lonesome person, and he invited her over.

Mrs. Marone came over with a plate of scones, a saxophone, and a xylophone. Mr. Slone was no longer alone with his trombone.

They created beautiful tones with the saxophone and trombone. Now the lonesomeness is gone. The phone is always ringing with invitations for Marone and Slone to create their beautiful tones.
