

Structured Language Experience Story “ong” #2

Once upon a time there was a warmonger who was a troublemaker. One day he repented when he felt a strong longing to become a songster. He wandered through cities until he found throngs of people. He hit a gong and got all of the people’s attention. After he sang his songs, part of the throngs wanted to prolong the fun and formed a group of songsters. The warmonger was able to prolong a daylong singsong into a lifelong singsong.
