

Structured Language Experience Story “ot” #2

The Scottish robot, Otto, cannot make pottery in his owner's cottage in Scotland. His owner has forgotten the potter's wheel, and now the robot's day is shot. But, the owner's motto is to make the best of a rotten day. So, he changed his plans and plotted to use his botany skills to grow cotton for cloth. However, as the day grew hotter, he got the robot and tottered off to get out of the hot sun. He did not make pottery or grow cotton.
