

Structured Language Experience Story “tion” #2

Mr. Nolation wanted to take his family on an educational vacation. He had the notion that he could set into motion his children's imagination. They would leave the station right after the graduation.

The Nolation's vacation began with an introduction to the history of immigration to our great nation. On Ellis Island, they got quite an education as they learned about the identification of those seeking immigration. They understood the notion of having a devotion to freedom.

Their next destination was our nation's capital. It was very educational as they watched the nominations for the next election. The Nolations now had a better understanding of the functions of government. They headed home with an appreciation for the educational vacation.
